Our published packaging reports and APCO certificate

This collection brings together the packaging reports and membership certificate linked from our website. Each document retains its own reporting period and scope. For newer reporting or current membership confirmation, contact our team.

Home · Electric motors · Drives and controls · Contact

APCO 2023 Annual Report and Action Plan

The report names Teco Australia Pty Ltd, ABN 77 002 595 388, and covers January–December 2022. It records an overall performance level of Advanced and describes improved factory data on recycled content and communication of packaging guidelines. Its action plan includes reviewing 95% of packaging, using some recycled material in 84% of packaging, disposal labelling on 100% of packaging, and a 40% on-site waste-diversion aim. These figures are commitments in the action plan, not evidence of achieved percentages.

Earlier 2022 report

The earlier report covers January–December 2021 and also records an Advanced performance level. Its action-plan figures differ from the 2023 document. Keep the editions separate when reviewing progress; the plans use different commitments and do not establish a simple year-on-year measure of achieved recycling.

APCO membership certificate

The linked certificate names Teco Australia Pty Ltd and records 9 June 2018 as the date it became a signatory to the Australian Packaging Covenant. The document says it must not be displayed if registration is withdrawn. It is a membership document, not certification of an individual product’s packaging or proof here of the present registration status.

Related information

- Download the APCO 2023 Annual Report and Action Plan
- Download the APCO 2022 Annual Report and Action Plan
- View the published APCO membership certificate
- Our home-appliance packaging approach